Additional comments on the section Policy Coherence:

G. Challenges

61. Has the NCP faced any particular challenge(s) it would like to highlight this year?
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - High number of specific instances - Complex specific instances (e.g., active parallel processes of different nature; instances dealing with new issues, such as trading and the digital economy) - High workload because of different requests from the OECD Secretariat (e.g., reports, meetings, comments of documents, questionnaire). - The NCP and its staff are responsible for different issues, not only for the specific instances handling, but also for the coordination of its advisory Committees, for the promotion of responsible business conduct, the participation of other public-private instances to raise awareness and promote responsible conduct in companies, the coordination of the OECD Anti-Bribery Convention (follow-up of recommendations, coordination of the National Group of Experts against Corruption (GNECC), participation in meetings, reports), the participation of the Anti-Corruption Alliance, in addition to actions committed within the framework of the National Human Rights Plan and the National Action Plan on Human Rights and Business, among other tasks.

Additional comments on the section Challenges:

It is important to consider that a high number of requests from different stakeholders, including the Secretariat of the OECD, can distract the NCP from its main duties, in particular the handling of specific instances. This should be considered by all the stakeholders involved, so that the NCP has time to implement and develop improvements in its work.
